12. Educational aims of the programme

The aim of this course is to prepare students with the skills, knowledge, understanding of the UK theatre industries, and personal attitudes and abilities, and contacts with local, regional and national networks, to set themselves up as solo performers or small-scale touring theatre companies. The aim of establishing as a small-scale touring company or practitioner does not however, limit ambition. Many successful mid and large-scale companies started small. The skills and knowledge from the course are also very transferable to other theatre-related careers, in performing, writing, directing, producing, programming, technical theatre, and arts marketing and administration. The course would also provide a good basis to move into education as a career and could lead to further doctoral study.

The title of the course MTheatre Touring Theatre indicates a field of practices and enquiries within the overall landscape of theatre today. This course asks questions about what it is that defines touring theatre, and how touring theatre can evolve to reflect and interact with changes in contemporary society. Touring theatre is a fluid and inclusive field, difficult to define perhaps but nevertheless the term 'touring theatre' is one that is widely used, and, on a day-to-day level, understood. The Arts Council, for example have a significant funding stream called Strategic Touring where they stress "forging stronger relationships between audiences, promoters, venues, artists and producers" and look particularly for work that "reflects the diversity of the local community and/or contemporary England".

The title MTheatre Touring Theatre is therefore:

- Firstly intended to signal a course in which the creation of performance work does not take place in isolation but in direct consideration of potential audiences, venues, communities and cultural contexts;
- Secondly, the title is intended to signal some of the practical 'business' involved in touring as an area of knowledge, skill and research i.e. how to make work that can tour, that is portable and adaptable, how to go about the business of organizing, funding, producing and promoting a tour etc. What kind of work is relevant to what kind of touring circuit?
- Thirdly the title 'touring theatre' is intended to signal the need to investigate, understand and potentially extend the possible forms of touring theatre and the opportunities and circuits for its production and presentation.

The distinctive features of the course that support this overarching aim are:

- Introduction to a broad knowledge and understanding of UK theatre, and a wide range of performance skills and techniques in the first two years of the course.
- A final year focused entirely on employability through the creation of 'real world' experience creating practical performance projects and delivering them within a range of public contexts, including an intensive production experience at a festival of national significance e.g., Edinburgh Fringe Festival.
- Development of theatre industry business skills such as fundraising, marketing, organisational start-up and support.
- A network of local and regional individuals, companies, organisations and venues to support the development and delivery of performance work, and facilitate students' entry into the professional world of theatre.

The following are the aims for the course:

- 1. To provide students with a sound knowledge of the history, contexts and practices of touring theatre, within the wider field of theatre and performance in the UK.
- 2. To support the development of advanced practical skills in a range of performance styles and practices.
- 3. To enable students to plan and deliver the technical aspects of small-scale touring productions using an appropriate level of theatre technology.
- 4. To provide a detailed knowledge of the funding, business, marketing, administrative, legislative, organisational, ethical and health and safety processes integral to touring theatre.
- 5. To give students an understanding of the range of systems and structures that support theatre, and touring theatre in particular, locally, regionally and nationally.
- 6. To offer opportunities for students to gain direct work-based experience of preparing and delivering theatre and performance for a range of venues, communities and contexts.
- 7. To enable students to become independent learners and researchers and to develop general critical, analytical and problem solving skills.
- 8. To enable students to bring an independent and professional level of commitment and engagement to their work.
- 9. To support students in finding and developing their own distinctive individual or company performance style, and to identify where they, as solo performer or company, sit within the landscape of the UK theatre industries.

14. Learning, teaching and assessment

Overview of the course

An integrated masters course is a 4 year course in which students study 3 years at BA level and move straight on to a 4th year of Masters level work. The Integrated Masters allows accumulative learning over this 4-year period, and the degree is awarded on achievements at Level 6 and 7. Students undertake a substantial performance project at Level 7 (THEA4003 Independent Touring Project) rather than a written dissertation, although THEA4002 Performance Lecture engages them in in-depth academic research and communication, for those who might wish to continue their academic studies on completion of the MTheatre Touring Theatre course. The MTheatre Touring Theatre is geared towards students intending to progress into the theatre industries by setting up as their own theatre companies or as independent freelance practitioners. The course provides targeted career opportunities through live theatre tours to venues and festivals at the same time as teaching the necessary organisation, marketing, technical and entrepreneurial skills for independent theatre practitioners.

As the MTheatre Touring Theatre runs in parallel with the BA Theatre, Acting and Performance, we are able to offer a range of shared modules at Level 4, 5 and 6 which allow students to explore the breadth of the field of theatre and performance, whilst specialising in touring theatre at Level 6 and 7. Students can enter the MTheatre Touring Theatre course at Level 4, or transfer across from the BA Theatre, Acting and Performance into the beginning of Level 5 or Level 6 (or from an alternative institution, provided the learning offers equivalence to ours). All students must complete Level 6 and 7; they cannot join for Level 7 alone. Students on the MTheatre Touring Theatre who for personal reasons or academic reasons cannot continue to Level 7, can graduate at the end of Level 6 with a BA Hons in Theatre, if they have sufficient credits.

Level 4 teaching and learning introduces skills and concepts that form the foundation of the course. All modules are shared with BA Theatre, Acting and Performance. Skills in the understanding and performing of script-based work is delivered in THEA1000, devising and physical theatre skills are explored in THEA1001 with additional attention to the use of visual mediums such as puppetry and mask work in THEA1002. Acting skills are focused on directly in THEA1003, and a hands-on experience of technical production (eg the setting up and creative use of light, sound and set) in THEA1004. THEA1005 extends students understanding of theatre as applied in a variety of socially engaged contexts and introduces the concept of co-creation.

In addition, the Level Four modules aim at the provision of core student skills. THEA1000 supports students with academic reading and writing skills appropriate for analytic and critical approaches. THEA1001 helps students develop a sense of group identity and collective responsibility in preparation for future collaborative work. It also enables students to develop principles of self and peer assessment.

Level 5 builds on and extends understanding and skills introduced at Level 4, providing new subject learning for students to begin to develop their own individual strengths. The majority of modules are shared with BA Theatre, Acting and Performance but with some distinctions. Level 5 offers a stronger focus on large group production work, informed by research, through the mandatory modules THEA2001 and THEA2008 which together form a major directed performance project; for the MTheatre students this is a touring theatre project with associated teaching and learning of technical theatre skills and applications. In the mandatory module THEA200 students explore the development and application of acting techniques across a range of media such as stage, screen, radio and online platforms. Students then choose 3 optional modules from the list above such as: THEA2003 Applied Theatre Practices which continues the investigation of drama within various social and community contexts, and introduces workshop skills; THEA2004 which builds on THEA1003 in exploring the creative use of technology (eg projections, live feed, online performance) in performance: THEA2002 which builds on THEA1001 to extend movement and choreographic skills and understanding: THEA2005 which focuses on the development of the written word in performance: THEA2006 which allows students to widen and deepen their understanding of the history and possibilities of musical theatre.

Level 6 introduces the unique flavour of the MTheatre course with a year-long production module, THEA3010, in which the students collaborate with a Lecturer/Director to create a festival show. This show will be presented as a work-inprogress at the end of Level 6, but will also form the basis of the show to be presented at a major theatre festival (such as Edinburgh Fringe Festival) during the summer between Level 6 and 7, as the first module of Level 7. Students will be offered the opportunity for professional practice and development in THEA3003, where they can either undertake a work placement or a work study of a professional company or venue. They will also develop skills in job application writing and interview and audition skills. Further professional development for touring theatre comes in THEA3013 in which students learn about and investigate the UK touring theatre landscape and put together a Tour Pack for the show created in THEA3010. Alongside these sit a range of further optional modules (shared with BA Theatre, Acting and Performance) that allow students to build on previous learning and continue to extend and explore their individual interests. Throughout Level 6, there is a shift to increased independent learning and self-direction, with support and supervision from staff and professionals.

Level 7 commences with a major, unique feature of the MTheatre Touring Theatre course: an intensive festival performance residency (THEA4000) in August following the completion of Level 6 work. This builds directly on THEA3010 and provides a unique work-based experience of both delivering a public production over a sustained period of time and engaging in the opportunities (for networking, viewing other work etc) provided by a nationally significant festival, such as Edinburgh Fringe Festival. Throughout Level 7 the emphasis is on the forming of theatre companies and/or development as a solo practitioner delivering projects in 'real world' contexts. Individuals and companies will be supported in finding their own distinctive style of work, as well as consolidating the necessary business and technical skills for their enterprises. Modules give opportunities for festival and small scale touring performance (THEA4000), exploring different forms for collaborative projects (THEA4001), and a more academically orientated Performance Lecture project (THEA4002), which opens up the possibility of Higher Education establishments as potential venues, as well as the opportunity to consider further practice based research within an academic context (eq PhD study). The course culminates with the independent creation of a major group or solo touring performance project, informed by all aspects of the course (THEA4003). This project (and previous ones) aims to put students in a position to complete their studies with a readymade project for professional touring.

Teaching

The course is taught through a blend of practical workshops, lectures, seminars, theatre visits and talks and performances by visiting companies, accompanied by independent research, learning and practical development and rehearsal. Blackboard is used to support all modules, and other e-learning tools including social media platforms, Padlet, Office 365, Panopto etc. The department's two studios (fully equipped with up-to-date technical facilities), and the knowledge and skills of the technical support staff will be integral to students' learning. A key aspect of this course, as students enter Level 6 and 7, is the creation and presentation of public performances. These projects will be developed in connection, consultation or collaboration with a range of external organisations and venues, and provide significant work-based learning opportunities in the field of touring theatre. The University has invested in portable lighting and technical equipment to support these tours, and we have developed a good network of schools, theatres, arts centres and festivals to support the touring work.

The transferable skills of graduates in this domain are those much sought after in a range of other environments; they enhance students' profiles and employability and they are explicitly found in all work undertaken in drama. Thus, the development of an appropriate work ethic, including taking on roles and responsibilities, collaboration, negotiation and decision making, leadership, interpersonal engagement and serving the whole are essential in any kind of production work, and this is embedded in the learning and teaching and assessment strategies employed by the department, and assessed within modules through attendance and engagement within course work.

In addition, meetings with Personal Academic Tutors are scheduled on at least four occasions in the first year and three occasions in each of the other years of a course.

The University places emphasis on enabling students to develop the independent learning capabilities that will equip them for lifelong learning and future employment, as well as academic achievement. A mixture of independent study, teaching and academic support from Student Services and Library Services, and also the Personal Academic Tutoring system enables students to reflect on progress and build up a profile of skills, achievements and experiences that will help them to flourish and be successful.

Contact time

In a typical week students will have around 12–15 contact hours of teaching. The precise contact hours will depend on the optional modules selected.

Generally, modules are taught in 3-4 hour blocks and are practice led, with theory taught within practical sessions to enable students to gain an understanding of how to apply research within practical and professional contexts. Teaching is supported with seminars and tutorials.

Independent self-study

In addition to the contact time, students are expected to undertake around 20 hours of personal study per week. Typically, this will involve reading, meeting with groups to work on projects and tasks, preparing for assignments and going on trips to see work.

In the final 4th year there is normally slightly less contact time in order to do more independent study. On average, students will receive around 9-10 hours of contact time per week, with an expectation of around 20 hours of independent research, study and practical development. In semester 2 (which largely focuses on DRAM4003 Independent Touring Project) students may receive on average around 5–6 hours of contact time, with an expectation of around 25 hours of independent work.

Independent learning is supported by a range of excellent learning facilities, including the Hive and library resources, the virtual learning environment, and extensive electronic learning resources.

Diversity and Inclusion

The University of Worcester is committed to providing a genuinely inclusive learning community for all students. We are working hard towards equalising outcomes for disadvantaged groups and removing any unhelpful obstacles or barriers to learning to ensure everyone is treated equitably. At the University, we embed the principles of inclusion into our professional practice to help ensure that all students have the opportunity to develop, work hard, and excel both academically and personally. We support personalised approaches to learning that take account of each individual's unique experiences and aspirations.

Ensuring the importance of diversity of personal identity and cultural heritage within the whole University community is a key policy imperative. Targeted learning and teaching strategies and networks such as the LGBTQ+ Allies Scheme increase understanding of gender and sexual diversity amongst staff and students. Individuals with protected characteristics including growing numbers who declare as neuro-diverse benefit from strong support structures. There is a commitment to enhancing the experience of Black and Global Majority students through efforts to decolonise the curriculum and encourage the sharing of multiple cultural perspectives. Alongside initiatives to widen the pool of teaching staff of diverse heritage, there is also a recognition of the need to raise awareness of the effects of poorly understood structural racism in order to remove barriers to a fully diverse creative environment.

Students are encouraged to contact the Disability and Dyslexia Service (https://www2.worc.ac.uk/disabilityanddyslexia/) for more information and support.

Teaching staff

Students will be taught by a teaching team whose expertise and knowledge are closely matched to the content of the modules on the course. and includes respected senior academics and professional practitioners with substantial, current industry experience.

Current staff qualifications:

- 1 Professorship
- 5 Research Doctorates
- 4 Fellows of the Higher Education Academy
- 2 Senior Fellows Higher Education Academy

Assessment

The course provides opportunities to test understanding and learning informally through the completion of practice or 'formative' assignments. Each module has one or more formal or 'summative' assessment which is graded and counts towards the overall module grade. Formative assessments carry no weighting but are important and designed to help students achieve their best in the final summative assessments. Formative assessment can take different forms such as peer feedback within student support teams, informal lecturer assessment and feedback or rehearsed presentations and performances. It is also embedded in the students ongoing engagement with tutors and is part of the individual tutorial system. This is an important part of student progress as it effectively creates a feedback loop offering opportunities for development.

A mixed assessment strategy is designed to ensure the assessment of the various learning outcomes on the course, including practical work, written work, presentations, project proposals and portfolios as summative assessment items. Practical assessment is a significant feature of the course, as creative and practical skills are paramount to the subject matter. Whilst cognitive skills can be seen at work within practical assessments, written assignments are also deployed (such as essays or critical reviews) to encourage a strengthening of students' critical and analytical skills. Presentations allow for the development of vital communication and interpersonal skills, and project proposals engage students in 'real world' tasks in preparation for careers in the theatre industries. Portfolios assess a student's ability to gather, collate and utilise relevant research, or document and analyse practical development work.

The assessment strategy also incorporates a gradual development from practical skills, knowledge and understanding in level 4, with these outcomes being further developed and complemented by skills of research and application in level 5. Level 6 modules build on these earlier outcomes and also require students to demonstrate more advanced practical, creative and work-based skills alongside analysis, evaluation and synthesis that are commonly most associated with level 6 study. Level 7 focuses on the advancement and synthesis of previous learning, the development of tailored independent learning and practice, and the application of these within substantial projects.

Assessment guidance and marking criteria is provided to students for each item of assessment. Each assessment item is specifically linked to the Learning Outcomes for the module contained with the module outline and is graded according to the relevant assessment criteria for each type of assessment (e.g. essay, practical, presentation).

The assessment strategy is designed with reference to the University of Worcester Assessment Strategy, the learning, teaching and assessment statement from the QAA Dance, Drama and Performance Benchmark Statement and the QAA Master's Degree Characteristics.

Appropriate support in teaching, learning and assessment for students with disabilities is provided in conjunction with the University Disability & Dyslexia Service. https://www2.worc.ac.uk/disabilityanddyslexia/

A grid showing assessment methods and weightings mapped to modules at each level, together with an assessment calendar of submission dates is included in the course handbook.

The precise assessment requirements for an individual student in an academic year will vary according to the mandatory and optional modules taken, but a typical formal summative assessment pattern for each year of the course is:

Year 1

- 2 x Essays
- 2 x Portfolios
- 5 x Group practical / performance work
- 2 x Critical reflections
- 3 x Individual or group presentations

Year 2

- 1 x Individual presentation
- 1 x Piece of creative writing
- 1 x Major group performance project

Year 4

15. Assessment strategy

Creativity and collaboration are central to the requirements of the programme, and assessment is designed to facilitate creative activity and promote independent and collaborative learning. The assessment programme is such that it:

- has module learning outcomes which relate to the course outcomes
- has assessment criteria that can be applied to all learning outcomes
- is both course-led and student-centred and can be negotiated where appropriate
- is process- and product-based.

The assessed learning which students may achieve on the course can be classified under four different headings, or domains:

- the conceptual involves research, selection and analysis of theory
- the productive demands the interpretation and application of research into practice
- the contextual/critical evidences critical thinking
- the personal/interpersonal tracks the development of those skills pertinent to organisation and successful completion of a project.

The synoptic learning and assessment approach allows students to make connections, and students receive feedback on formative and summative assessments.

All work encourages critical thinking and analysis and is founded upon a range of theoretical perspectives, historical and social contexts and/or performance methodologies. Parity across modules is achieved by a system of equivalence that applies to word counts and practical work.

16. Programme structures and requirements

Please see Award Map/s at the end of this document. The MTheatre Touring Theatre is only available as full-time, single honours.

17. QAA and professional academic standards and quality

BA (Hons) Theatre (Exit Award only)

This award is located at Level 6 of the FHEQ.

The QAA Honours Degree Subject Benchmark Statement: Dance, Drama and Performance 2019 articulates the knowledge, skills and categories of achievement to be expected of successful honours graduates in the field. These, together with the contextual statement have been used to craft course and module learning outcomes and content as well as learning, teaching and assessment strategies of all modules.

MTheatre Touring Theatre

This award is located at Level 7 of the FHEQ.

In addition to the Subject Benchmark Statement: Drama, Dance and Performance, the QAA Master's Degree Characteristics (2020) has been used to craft course and module learning outcomes as well as learning, teaching and assessment strategies.

This award is located at Level 7 of the FHEQ.

18. Support for students

Each student will be allocated a Personal Academic Tutor from within the Course Team. Tutors play an integral role in a student's progression through their degree, offering academic and pastoral support and acting as a bridge between different modules and years of study. Students will be given an opportunity to meet with their tutor during induction sessions and four times annually thereafter, with the intention of developing a close working relationship that allows the tutor to build a clear picture of a student's progress throughout the course.

Academic tutor sessions predominantly take the form of one-to-one sessions, at which notes are taken and stored on SOLE, and use is made of the academic tutorials checklist provided by the Professional Administrative Services team.

The Personal Academic Tutor will encourage the student to take responsibility for their own personal and professional development planning. Structured face-to-face and online support typically covers the following:

- · Awareness of their own strengths and weaknesses.
- A clear vision of what they want to achieve through HE study.
- Greater understanding of how study in their chosen discipline area at the University can help them towards their goals.
- Responsibility for their choices in modules, work and social life.
- A reflective approach to all the feedback they receive on their work.
- A sense (and a record) of progression and achievement in their development of subject and generic skills, attributes and personal qualities.
- An ability to use their greater awareness to articulate the benefits of their HE experience to others including employers.

The Personal Academic Tutor will also:

- Respond to student requests for support and help with problems which affect academic work either at subject level or by referral to other University facilities.
- Provide information for and assist in the drafting of the University reference.

Although students should meet their Personal Academic Tutor four times annually, students may also need to contact their tutor at other times, particularly if the student is experiencing problems and individual tutorials can be arranged as necessary.

Transition

Students' transition into university life is assisted by a one-week induction programme, which, through a range of activities, introduces students to their course, the staff who will be teaching them, and other students within the School of Arts. Students are, for example, invited to attend the School of Arts Party and have the opportunity to watch performances of graduate and undergraduate work.

During induction week students engage in a range of activities which develop their understanding of the expectations of the course, undergraduate study, and the University's systems and services, including the Library and IT facilities, Media Services, and the Careers and the Counselling Service.

Progressing students are also provided with a brief induction into their second and third years and incoming direct entry students are given additional, dedicated support by a named member of staff whose role it is to help them settle and to understand expectations.

Students transferring onto the MTheatre at the beginning of Level 6, either internally or from external institutions, will be given a 2 day technical induction in lieu of the Level 5 mandatory THEA2008 Technical Theatre Skills.

Level 7 will commence with one-to-one tutorials with the Course Leader to establish each students' interests and career aspirations to help focus their learning in the final year.

Further support

During module delivery students are supported through one-to-one and small group tutorials. Students are given clear indications of when staff will be available for these tutorials - normally via email or in module outlines.

Students are supported further through a range of online support, for example via email or online tutorials. All modules are supported through the virtual learning environment accessed through Blackboard. The Course Handbook is also available online.

Furthermore, the Course team liaises with a range of centrally provided support services to ensure that students access all appropriate channels of support. These include for example:

21. Graduate destinations, employability and links with employers

Graduate destinations

The MTheatre Touring Theatre is a unique course. No other University offers this combination of a 4 year Integrated Masters integrating specific preparation for employment in the vibrant touring theatre sector. Graduates from the MTheatre Touring Theatre have gone on to set up their own theatre companies or establish themselves as solo theatre makers: Strange Futures Theatre Company, Theatre of the Beautiful Wild and Damned, Emma Bourke Productions, Aaron Corbett, Ten Minutes Late Theatre Company, Tisa Klicek and Aaron Corbett amongst others. Several companies/solo practitioners have received Arts Council and other national funding to create, present and/or tour work locally, regionally and nationally. Others have been accepted into emerging artists schemes at local and regional theatres and/or are working with other existing theatre companies such as Vamos and Reaction Theatre Makers. Other graduates are successfully employed as Creative Producers or Marketing & Communication Officers (eg at Worcester Theatres and The Arches Festival). Others again have been employed or freelancing as theatre technicians.

Through working in collaboration and consultation with practitioners, venues, companies and professional networks within the course, successful graduates will complete the course with a useful range of contacts for their entry into the professional world, including Worcester Theatres, The Malvern Cube, Birmingham Rep, Birmingham Mac, Greenside Venues (Edinburgh), Hereford Courtyard, Rhum & Clay Theatre Company, Chris Thorpe, Pentabus Theatre Company, Strike A Light, Feast Festival, Loud & Queer Festival, Fierce Festival, Shout Festival.

The structure of the course is designed to put graduates in the position of having a portfolio of performance projects ready at the culmination of their course so that they can set about entry into the theatre industries.

Student employability

The course helps students to develop useful employability skills in a variety of ways. It supports students to become resilient and aspirational, intellectually curious and critically reflective. Many modules encourage pro-active investigation, such as THEA1003, THEA2000, THEA3009, and THEA4003. The course also offers many opportunities to develop teamwork, communication and interpersonal skills, especially through the production-based modules THEA2001, THEA3010 and THEA4003. The course offers opportunities for students to develop their technical skills, particularly in relation to technical theatre in modules such as THEA1004, THEA2008 and THEA4002. Students undertake a work placement or case study THEA3003, and collaborate directly with external organisations in THEA4001.

MTheatre Touring Theatre recognises the importance of professional experience to the development of students, and so outward-facing engagement with creative industry organisations is integral to the delivery of the course. Additionally, we provide opportunities for students to take part in performance productions or special projects developed by the University or its partners. Recent projects of this kind include:

- Multiple self-authored student performances at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival and Brighton Fringe Festival.
- Club Paradise, a student production which toured the West Midlands and Prague.
- Student performances as part of the Worcester Light Night Festival.
- Student performances frequently programmed as part of the cultural events surrounding Worcestershire Pride. Students also volunteer in a number of capacities in organising and producing Pride events.
- Student-led Theatre of the Oppressed workshops at The Doon School in Dehradun and at The National School of Drama TIE Company in Delhi.

- School-based tours of Lord of the Flies and DNA, which was also performed as part of a showcase at Birmingham Repertory Theatre.
- Students regularly employed as student ambassadors to deliver workshops, talks, etc at schools and colleges across the West Midlands.

Students are taught about the processes for approaching theatre and festival programmers with proposals, and learn to create professional-level Tour Packs, Technical Specifications and Risk Assessments for their touring productions and collaborative projects. They have opportunities work with theatre venues and companies and learn to search and apply for jobs and career opportunities.

Visiting theatre companies and theatre professionals contribute to teaching on the course. In particular at Level 7, a series of theatre specialists give talks and offer feedback on students' developing work.

The culture of theatre and performance at Worcester also serves to enhance students' career prospects. Students have access to the work of staff-led performance companies operating in such diverse areas as community theatre, applied theatre, theatre and disability, and national and international touring theatre.

Links with employers

The MTheatre Touring Theatre course was designed in 2018, following consultation with professionals from the touring theatre field. We continue to liaise with theatres, producers and practitioners in the development and delivery of the course. A recent 'health check' with Elle While (Artistic Director) and Amber Knipe (Producer) of Pentabus Touring Theatre confirmed that the course is still highly relevant and appropriate in terms of preparing graduates to enter the field of touring theatre. They highlighted the ongoing need (embedded in this course) for graduates to not only make strong creative work but also to:

- understand the business and financial aspects of running a company,
- be strategic about finding a 'unique selling point' or a niche into which the emerging theatre companies/practitioners can fit,
- recognise the important of audience development and engagement, especially in light of the Arts Council's Let's Create strategy.

Please note: This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if s/he takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in associated course documentation e.g. course handbooks, module outlines and module specifications.
