Examples of learning, teaching and assessment methods used:

The course emphasises a learning experience that is meaningful, active, reflective, collaborative and creative. These principles are practised through working methods and outcomes reflected in the range of assessments and subject matter requiring critical analysis and reflective activities. Lectures, seminars and tutorials will be used extensively, but, in addition, a great deal of participants' time will be spent in small groups and workshops, involving, for example, discussion of case studies, simulation exercises, and preparation for assessments. Additionally, it is clear that the private study demands on this type of course are considerable.

The teaching and learning approach of the course combines pedagogic approaches, including using some of the latest approaches to learning technology i.e. crowdfunding, action learning, and independent learning. Learners will acquire a toolkit of diverse and complex skills and knowledge necessary for their development as a creative organizational change agent. Student-centered self-support groups, both face-to-face and/or via virtual contact, will be used throughout the course. There are thus a variety of pedagogic approaches in which the focus of the learning is experiential to enable consideration of practice and evaluation during workshops and other face-to-face opportunities, and to use online technology and related facilities for knowledge acquisition and research.

The course offers opportunities for collaborative learning both in face-to-face groups and online where there is increased use of collaborative learning tools such as discussion boards, blogs and wikis. Some may be facilitated by lecturers, other staff or even by our industry partners. Others may be initiated and run by students (peer-managed). These tools offer considerable opportunities to learn from others in the group and extend the learning experience beyond the boundaries of the formal session.

The teaching strategy will be eclectic enabling the learner to gain the necessary underpinning theoretical knowledge and research that will enable active exploration, reflection and critical evaluation of own perceptions and knowledge. This approach develops the ability to become an autonomous and self-directed learner. This means the learner will be confident of their capabilities as an independent learner and researcher and able to manage their own learning in line with a busy work schedule. This skill-set will be used to develop a depth and breadth of subject-matter knowledge, reflecting and analysing the implications of this towards understanding of innovation and the changing global sport context, and applying this new understanding in practical situations accordingly.

Action learning involves the use of 'real-life' problems and scenarios; these will be integrated into the workshops and other face-to-face sessions. This flexible process allows action, improvement and change together with relevant research to be achieved at the same time. Each learner will gain knowledge and understanding which will allow change to be processed in an informed way, and similarly, understanding will be further informed by that change. This process of learning can be replicated in the workplace to help and enable transference of learning and is self-developmental and reflective in nature.

Teaching contact hours

In a typical week students will have up to 12 contact hours of teaching and this will break down as:

- Lectures: 6 hours per week in groups of between 5 and 20;
- Seminars: 6 hours per week in small groups of between 5 and 15-20;
- Work-based learning: 15 hours per week in semester 2;
- Project supervision: 1 hour per week over semester 2/3;
- Fieldwork: 40 hours over the semester.

In addition, students will be expected to undertake around 25 to 28 hours of personal study each week including reading and preparation for classes and assessments, online activities etc.

During the academic year students will have opportunities to meet with module tutors on a one to one or small group basis to discuss assessments and will meet with their personal academic tutor on 2 occasions to discuss academic and personal development.

14. Assessment strategy

The underpinning philosophy of all the assessments is developmental, enhancing current knowledge, expertise and capabilities towards each individual being an able and confident leader and manager. Each learner will receive regular and constructive feedback from the academic team, peers, and, where appropriate, industry professionals. There will be support in the use and integration of this feedback as part of professional and self-development, and this active guidance will help to plan the next stages of the learning journey. This opportunity for supported self-reflection will enable each student to take charge of their own learning through the development of critical evaluation, reflection and planning skills.

To facilitate and maximise learning, a range of assessment methods are used throughout the programme. They are all rooted in authentic and practical scenarios to enable learning to be transferred to the professional environment, and for each learner to demonstrate their developing skills and abilities. Assessments include individual written assignments, professional reports, oral presentations, creative design tasks, e-communication submissions, and a capstone applied research project. Each student will emerge a more informed, confident, communicative and engaging individual ready for the next life challenge within the global sports sector.

The learning and teaching environment includes interactive lectures, seminars, workshops and independent and group study tasks, with students gradually required to take control of their learning in a more independent manner as they progress throughout their course. A period of professional work-based learning is included within the course whereby students are required to apply their knowledge and skills to an applied setting. The course culminates with a Master's level Applied Research Project during the final semester of study.

Assessments test both students' theoretical knowledge and application of that knowledge to real-world situations. Students will be required to demonstrate competency in research methods prior to progressing to the Applied Research Project.

Marking criteria are provided with all assignment briefs upon commencement of each module. In addition to summative assessment tasks, a range of formative tasks (which will include online group/individual tasks and tutorials) will provide the opportunity for students to receive feedback on their progress.

The Learning and Teaching strategies used in the International Sport Management course are in accordance with the UW Learning and Teaching Strategy and Assessment Policy and with the Institute of Sport & Exercise Science response to these documents.

Furthermore, the course will operate within the University's Taught Courses Regulatory Framework (TCRF) for assessment, marking and re-assessment.

15. Programme structures and requirements

Students may wish to progress on to the MSc Sports Coaching which requires the successful completion more modules to reach a total of 180 credits, (90 ECTS) at Level 7 including a minimum of 60 credits for the dissertation (See Award Map below for modules and credit values required for each award)

Level 7

The key defining characteristic of work at Master's level is that it is informed by issues and insight at the forefront of the discipline, field or area of research and professional practice.

Delivery:

The programmes have been designed to provide opportunities for both newly qualified graduates and currently employed professionals to achieve excellence at postgraduate level. In accommodating these groups of students, in particular those in current employment, the modules have an innovative delivery pattern which supports the University's Mission statement of "increasing access, widening participation and assisting students to achieve their potential".

The predominant principle underpinning the organisation and timetabling of the course will be to flexibly design the best possible package for the cohort in question. This may mean the course looks very different from year-to-year in terms of the delivery patterns of the modules across the semesters. Depending on the status and availability of the cohort, weekday evenings, weekends, study blocks and blended learning will be utilised to create the best possible package for the students. Whilst it is inevitable that no package will ever suit every student perfectly, the module team is committed to ensuring that ever endeavour is invested in creating the most flexible offer possible.

We support reflective learning in an applied setting, allowing students to apply skills, knowledge and understanding derived from their own professional practice as well as from specialist course modules into a professional setting, and explore the challenges of applying 'book-learning' into professional practice. Placements are identified in the main by postgraduate students (in some cases, contacts within the Institute are used to help a student struggling to find a placement opportunity).
