Slavery & Human Trafficking Statement

Modern slavery is a crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It takes various forms, such as slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour and human trafficking, all of which have in common the deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for personal or commercial gain.

The University of Worcester is committed to ensuring that slavery or human trafficking is not taking place in any part of our supply chain or in any part of our own business.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes The University of Worcester's slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending July 2019.

Organisational structure

The University of Worcester is a Higher Education Corporation created by statute and is an exempt charity. The University also has a number of trading subsidiaries: U W Developments Limited, U W Enterprises Limited, U W Worcester Wolves Limited and UW UP LLP.

We have approximately 9000 students registered on courses in the UK and across the world. We directly employ approximately 2000 staff and have an annual income just below £100 Million.

In addition to the University sites located in Worcester, the University has developed relationships with other countries and has significant teaching partnerships, and works in other countries through research and exchange programmes.

The University's values are entirely consistent with the aim of eliminating slavery. Our work is inspired by a commitment to human equality and dignity, democracy and mutual respect. We aim for equal opportunity and real inclusion in all our activities. We promote sustainable development and active community engagement. We have an important role in generating and applying knowledge for public benefit. We believe that every individual matters and aim to help all our students, staff and partners make the most of their own rich potential as well as to benefit from the practical rewards and prosperity which stem from higher education and learning.

Our Policies

We operate and regularly review workplace policies and procedures to assess their effectiveness in identifying and tackling modern slavery issues. Our workplace policies and procedures demonstrate our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in our supply chains.

Some of the University policies that support our approach to tackling modern slavery and human trafficking include:

Whistleblowing Policy

The University of Worcester is committed to maintaining the highest standards of honesty, openness and accountability and to conducting its business in a responsible way. The policy encourages employees to raise their concerns in a responsible way where there is malpractice (that is, illegal, improper or negligent behaviour) or wrongdoing within an organisation and, where they do so, protects those employees from reprisal.

Safeguarding Children and vulnerable adults

This aims to ensure the safety and welfare of children and adults at risk whilst on the University's premises or while engaging in activities controlled by the University

Health & Safety Policy

This sets out the expectations on employees, students, and site users to support the University's efforts to provide a safe and healthy workplace and to meet their own individual duty of care to others.

The University has in place a number of frameworks which underpin its ethical standards across all business activities, this includes a Sustainable Procurement policy, Fairtrade status and Environmental policies.

The University is also part of the North West Universities Purchasing Consortium (NWUPC) which is a membership based buying consortia for Universities and some Further Education colleges. NWUPC is a member of Procurement England Limited (PEL) which has a shared sustainability policy to which all consortia are committed. The University also have the opportunity to purchase from various other consortia including Crown Commercial Services (CCS), Eastern Shires Purchasing Organisation (ESPO), Crescent Purchasing Consortium (CPC) and various NHS frameworks, these consortia have all published their own modern slavery statements.

The NWUPC has recently become an affiliate member of Electronics watch, on behalf of its members. This membership highlights the overall desire of the HE sector to protect the rights of workers within the supply chain, and that we are committed to taking positive action.

The University has a zero tolerance to slavery and human trafficking and have updated our standard terms and conditions to mandate compliance to the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

In order to meet our obligations under this act the University has signed up to NETpositive Futures, this is an on-line assessment tool that allows us to engage directly with all of our suppliers to identify their awareness of modern slavery and human trafficking. All of our suppliers have been contacted to encourage them to sign up to this free HE sector wide tool. The use of this tool by our supply base continues to rise with supplier registrations up by 27% on 2018 figures. The tool actively assists all our suppliers to develop an action plan that addresses Modern Slavery and other key sustainability issues within their businesses and supply chain. Data provided via NETpositives is a rich source of information to use to help us understand our supply chain.

Training and awareness raising

Within the Procurement Team, as the area most actively engaged in the University's operational response to the Modern Slavery Act 2015, all members have undergone training. Ongoing collaboration is sought within the HE sector on best practice. The University will continue to ensure that those who are involved in activities in which modern slavery and human trafficking could be an issue will continue to receive support and training, the University will continue to generally raise awareness across the organisation.

Members of the Procurement Team have delivered lectures to students within the Business School to raise their awareness of sustainability issues arising within the supply of goods and services into the University of Worcester.
