Marie Stowell joined the University of Worcester in 2004 as Director of Quality and Educational Development, where she has oversight of the work of the Academic Quality Unit, the Academic Development and Practice Unit and the Centre for Inclusive Learning Support. With responsibility for strategic leadership on academic quality and learning and teaching matters, Marie chairs the Academic Standards and Quality Enhancement Committee within the University.

Previously Marie worked for a number of years in various posts at the University of Northampton, including as Director of the Common Academic Framework and Director of Educational Partnerships and Widening Participation. She has a strong interest in Higher Education Policy, particularly in relation to assessment and equal opportunity matters, and is a member of the Student Assessment and Classification Working Group (SACWG) which engages in institutional research on assessment matters.
